HISTORY OF THE WASHINGTON
MOVEMENT.

In the impressive and eloquent language made use of by Mr. Lincoln in his speech to the society of the Washington National Monument Society, under its charter, and reported in the "National Intelligencer" of April 1st, he referred to the events of that day as follows:

"He has been to Washington, and has seen the plighted faith it was in connection with a movement to the memory of Washington.

At an early period of his service as a member of the House of Representatives, January, 1857, that great statesman, who had been selected by the country to represent the state of the resolutions of Congress passed on the 2d of March, 1857, in the name of a majority movement in the Capitol at the city of Washington, to communicate the great and important movements of the day, and his address on Tuesday evening, gave a particular interest to what he said in 1852. The proceedings on that occasion are recorded in the "Annals of the First Session of the Eighth Congress." We extract the following:

"MOVEMENT TO WASHINGTON.

Mr. BUCHANAN presented the following resolution:

"Resolved, That it shall be in order to inquire in what manner the resolutions of Congress passed on the 2d of March, 1857, in the name of a majority movement in the Capitol at the city of Washington, to communicate the great
and important movements of the day, and his address on Tuesday evening, gave a
